Remark to appendix 1

Since January 1st, 1978, it is in the Countries of the European Common Market officially no longer permissible to make use of other units of measure besides the traditional measure, the typographic point. According to the 'Système International' qv, the Didot point is  $1000.333/2660 \text{ mm} \approx 0.376065 \times 10^{-3} \text{ m}$ . See Didot system; point; point system. See also preceding pages. At the time of the delivery of the manuscript for this dictionary to the publisher, the metric system was not general in use. Also due to the new typesetting techniques are now in use Didot, pica, inch and metric units. Conversion of measures of one system into another is a source of confusion.

Paper size names in Britain and America

In preparing this dictionary paper size names, according to the American Paper and Pulp Association appeared to be obsolescent. A considerable number of names, used principally abroad, denote various sizes of cards, boards and ledger, writing, printing and wrapping papers. Various cut sizes of paper and paperboard are not generally designated by specific names. Many of the English names are familiar in the United States. However, though these names are out of use, it may be useful to record them, were it merely in reply to occasional questions.

International paper sizes

The basis of the international sizes, or A sizes, is a rectangle having an area of one square metre, the sides of which are in the ratio  $1 : \sqrt{2}$  (or 1:1.414); one side is consequently 841 mm, the other 1189 mm. In order to meet the smaller sizes after trimming the untrimmed sizes for the A-sizes are: RA<sub>0</sub> = 860 × 1220 mm, RA<sub>1</sub> = 610 × 860 mm and RA<sub>2</sub> = 430 × 610 mm. The C and D sizes are practically not in use. The C<sub>0</sub> size is 917 × 1297 mm; the D<sub>0</sub> size is 771 × 1090 mm.

Appendix 6 | Some rules for hyphenation

There are no hard-and-fast rules for the application of hyphens. It is more or less governed by the view and styles adopted by English and American printers. In general the following notes abstracted from the GPO Style Manual (Washington, 1963), may be of some assistance.

A hyphen must be used:

1. to avoid doubling a vowel or tripling a consonant, except after the short prefixes, co, de, pre, pro, and re, which are generally printed solid. (anti-inflation; micro-organism; brass-smith; thimble-eye; shell-like; hull-less; cooperation; deemphasis; preexisting).
2. between words, or abbreviations of words, combined to form a unit modifier immediately preceding the word modified, except as indicated sub 26. This applies particularly to combinations in which one element is a present or past participle. (collective-bargaining talks; English-speaking nation; high speed line; long-term-payment loan; multiple-purpose uses; part-time personnel; 1-inch diameter; a 4-percent increase (but: 4 percent of hydrochloric acid; U.S.-flag ship).
3. do not confuse a modifier with the word it modifies. (American flag-ship; well-trained schoolteacher; wooden-shoe maker; light-blue hat; elementary-school teacher; but: common stockholder; small businessman).
4. where two or more hyphenated compounds have a common basic element and this element is omitted in all but the last term. (2- or 3-em quads, not 2 or 3-em quads; 2- to 3- and 4- to 5-ton trucks; 2-by 4-inch boards; long- and short-term money rates, not long and short-term money rates; but: twofold or threefold, not two or threefold; goat, sheep and calf skins, not goat sheep and calfskins).
5. to prevent mispronunciation, to insure a definite accent on each element of the compound, or to avoid ambiguity. (non-civil-service position; non-tumor-bearing tissue; re-cover (cover again); re-treat (treat again); un-ionized, un-uniformity).
6. with the prefixes ex, self, and quasi. (ex-governor; ex-trader; self-control; quasi-academic; quasi-young; but: selfhood, selfsame).
7. to join a prefix or combining form to a capitalized word, unless usage demands otherwise. The hyphen is retained in words of this class set in caps. (anti-Arab; pro-British; non-Government; post-World War II or post-Second World War; but: nongovernmental; transatlantic).
8. between the elements of compound numbers from twenty-one to ninety-one and in adjective compounds with a numeric first element. (twenty-one; 24-inch ruler; 8-hour day; 10-minute delay; 20th-century progress; 3-to-1 ratio; two-sided question; but one hundred and twentyone; $ 20 million airfield).
9. between the elements of a fraction, but not between the numerator and the denominator when the hyphen appears in either or in both (one-thousandth; two-thirds; two one-thousandths; twenty-three thirtieths; twenty-one thirty-seconds; three-fourths of an inch).
10. in a unit modifier following and reading back to the word or words modified and is always printed in the singular. (motor, alternating-current, 3-phase, 60-cycle, 115-volt; glass jars: 5-gallon, 2-gallon, 1-quart; belts: 2-inch, 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>-inch, 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>-inch, 1<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>-inch).
11. with the adjectives elect and designate, as the last element of a title. (President-elect; Vice-President-elect; minister-designate).
12. between the elements of technical compound units of measurement. (candle-hour; horse-power-hour; kilowatt-hour; passenger-mile).
13. between the elements of an improvised compound. (blue-pencil, v.; know-how, n.; make-believe, n.; how-to-be-beautiful course).
14. in a prepositional-phrase compound noun consisting of three or more words. (man-of-war; mother-in-law; mother-of-pearl; patent-in-fee; but: coat of arms; heir at law; next of kin; officer in charge).
15. in verbs when the corresponding noun form is printed as separate words. (cold-shoulder; blue pencil; cross-brace).
16. in a compound formed of repetitive or conflicting terms and in a compound naming the same thing under two aspects. (comedy-ballet; dead-live; devil-devil; farce-melodrama; walkie-talkie; young-old).
17. in a nonliteral compound expression containing an apostrophe in its first element. (assess'-eyes; ass's-foot; bull's eye; cat's-paw; crow's-nest; but: The cat's paw is soft. There is the crow's nest).
18. to join a single capital letter to a noun or a participle. (H-bomb; T-shaped; U-boat; V-necked; X-ray; S-iron; T-square).

No hyphen is used:

19. when words appear in regular order and the omission causes no ambiguity in sense or sound. (banking hours; blood pressure; eye opener; living costs; palm oil; patent right; training ship; violin teacher).
20. in words expressing a literal or nonliteral (figurative) unit idea that would not be as clearly expressed in unconnected succession. (afterglow; cupboard; newsprint; forget-me-not; right-of-way).
21. between two nouns that form a third when the compound has only one primary accent, especially when the prefixed noun consists of only one syllable or when one of the elements loses its original accent. (airship; bathroom; bookseller; footnote; locksmith; workman).
22. in a noun consisting of a short verb and an adverb as its second element, except when the use of the solid form would interfere with comprehension. (blowout; break down; flareback; holdup; makeready; pickup; runoff, setup; showdown; throwaway; but: cut-in; tie-in).
23. usually in compounds beginning with the following nouns: book; eye; horse; house; mill; play, school; shop; snow; way; wood; work).
24. in compounds ending in the following, especially when the prefixed word consists of one syllable. (boat; book; holder; house; maker; man; shop; store; time (not clock); worker; working; writing; etc.).
25. in compass directions consisting of two points, but a hyphen is used after the first point when three points are combined. (northeast; southwest; north-northeast; south-southwest).
26. where meaning is clear and readability is not aided. Restraint should be exercised in forming unnecessary combinations of words used in normal sequence. (durable goods industry; civil rights case; high school student; life insurance company; portland cement plant; but: no-hyphen rule (readability aided); nor no hyphen rule).
27. in a compound predicate adjective or predicate noun the second element of which is a present participle. (The duties were price fixing. The effects were far reaching. The area was used for beet raising).
28. in a two-word modifier the first element of which is a comparative or superlative. (better drained soil; higher level decision; larger sized dress; lower income group; but: lowercase type (printing); upperclassman; bestseller (noun); lighter-than-air craft; higher-than-market price).
29. in a two-word unit modifier the first element of which is an adverb ending in ly, or in a threeword modifier the first two elements of which are adverbs. (eagerly awaited moment; heavily laden ship; unusually well preserved specimen; not too distant future, but: ever-rising flood; still-new car; well-known lawyer).
30. in proper nouns used as unit modifiers, either in their basic or derived form, except after combining forms. (Latin American countries; United States laws; Red Cross nurse; Afro-American program; Franco-Russian war; but: Indochina border; North American-South American sphere; French-English descent).
31. in a unit modifier consisting of a foreign phrase. (ante bellum days; bona fide transaction; per diem employee).
32. in a unit modifier containing a letter or a numeral as its second element. (article 3 provisions; class II railroad; grade A paper).
33. in a unit modifier enclosed in quotation marks, unless it is normally a hyphenated term. Quotation marks are not to be used in lieu of a hyphen. ('blue sky' law; 'good neighbour' policy; 'tie-in' sale; but: right-to-work law).
34. in combination colour terms, but with a hyphen when such colour terms are unit modifiers. (bluish green; dark green; orange red; bluish-green feathers; iron-gray sink; silver-gray body).
35. in words ending on like, except when tripling a consonant or when the first element is a proper name. (lifelike; lilylike; girllike; bell-like; Florida-like).
36. in a modifier consisting of a possessive noun preceded by a numeral. (1 month's layoff; 1 week's pay; 2 hours' work; 3 weeks' vacation).
37. in civil or military titles denoting a single office, except in a double title. (assistant attorney general; commander in chief; notary public; secretary general; under secretary, but: undersecretaryship; vice president, but: vice-presidency; secretary-treasurer; treasurer-manager).
38. in scientific terms (chemicals, diseases, animals, insects, plants) used as unit modifiers if no hyphen appears in their original form. (carbon monoxide poisoning; methyl bromide solution; whooping cough remedy; but: Russian-olive planting; white-pine weevil; Douglas-fir tree).
39. in chemical elements used in combination with figures, even as a unit modifier. (polonium 210; uranium 235; but: U<sup>235</sup>; Sr<sup>90</sup>; 92U<sup>234</sup>; Freon 12).
40. in chemical formulas. (9-nitroanthra (1,9, 4, 10) bis (1) oxathiazone-2, 7-bisdioxide; Cr-Ni-Mo; 2,4-D).
41. in idiomatic phrases. (come by; inasmuch as; insofar as; Monday week).

Appendix 7 | Weights and measures

Current US system and former GB system. See also app. no. 7a. The United Kingdom embarked on a ten-year programme in 1965 to achieve substantial completion for a changeover from the imperial system of units to the metric system (SI). Australia, New Zealand and other Commonwealth countries have since adopted similar programmes. (For monetary units the UK decimalized its currency on 15 February 1971. One pound sterling = 100 pence.) Currently the US continues to use the inch-pound system, but legislation to change to the metric system is under consideration. For the equivalent names and their abbreviations in other languages, see in the basic table.
